

Nam Can Tho university produces bottled water for all DNC ecosystem staff, lecturers, employees, and patients at Nam Can Tho University Hospital
Nam Can Tho University has been producing and supplying bottled water with international quality standards to staff, lecturers, and employees of the entire DNC ecosystem in recent years in order to serve and improve their health.

The university provides free bottled water to all lecturers and staff. This ensures convenient access to clean and safe drinking water while reducing the consumption of external bottled water. Providing bottled water promotes convenience and health by offering a clean and convenient source of drinking water for lecturers and staff.

The bottled water supply project has been in operation for several years. The water is carefully branded to guarantee its quality and safety for consumption, while also adhering to environmental standards and preserving resources. The project has garnered enthusiastic support from the university's lecturers and staff, who have expressed their satisfaction with the convenience and high quality of the bottled water, as well as their active participation in environmental conservation efforts.

In addition, bottled water provided by the university is also intended for patients who come for health checking-up and treatment at Nam Can Tho University Hospital.

The bottled water supply project at Nam Can Tho University takes an important step in improving the quality of life and protecting the environment in the university community.
